blocks and blocks of corridors, a myriad of offices, classrooms, shops, and labs, home to thousands of textbooks, home-away-from-home to nearly eighteen hundred students. Howe has stood on Violet Hill for a period of twenty-four years. Our beautiful campus is the meeting place for memories of the past and new trends and fads of the modern scene.

Howe High is a school having a heartbeat as real as the tick of the Tower clock. Howe is laughter, the jokes between classes, and the race against the ever-menacing tardy bell. Howe is excitement, as the ball goes over the goal line in the closing seconds of a terrific game. Howe is struggling with the books, burning the midnight oil to take home a good report card. Howe is pride and the enthusiasm displayed by a loyal student body. Howe is the past, which has laid a firm foundation for an enjoyable present we'll never forget. Howe is the future and the work entailed to insure its brightness.

These are the many faces of Thomas Carr Howe High School: its laughter, its excitement, its struggles, its pride, and its hopes. We the people make up these emotions; we are the heartbeat of Howe. Howe is a part of us, and yet, we make up Howe.

Howeites learn about the world, enjoy

Busy Howeites, always on the go, made time to keep up with the abundance of news in today's world. An eventful year, 1961-1962 brought many news stories which changed our times.

On February 20, America triumphed once again in the space race when Marine Lt. Colonel John Glenn, Jr., successfully completed a triple orbit of the earth.

The crisis over the "Berlin wall" caused reserve troops to be called to active duty. Latin America continued to be a problem.

Americans, with the rest of the free world, joined in mourning the death of United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld of Sweden.

Signs of progress around Indianapolis were new schools to accommodate expanding city limits.

Because our future lives depend on the decisions and plans of today's adults, we want to be well-informed as to their ideals and visions so that we can carry on as leaders of tomorrow's society.

Rising twenty-seven stories into the sky, the new City-County Building in downtown Indianapolis can be seen from our campus. The city's tallest building was finished this year.

Wild sweaters were the order during winter months. Crew-necks, ski and vest sweaters, shawl neck and v-neck are chosen by "smart" Howe guys: Lanny Simpson, Dan Breckenridge, Charles Ewing, William Aust, and James Spear.

new modern fads

Everything went big in the year 1962, especially purses. Carrying all things, sometimes even the inevitable kitchen sink, purses resembled tackle boxes, saddle bags, and picnic baskets.

Sweaters appeared in a variety of styles, especially those tailored for Howe's men. Thick bold-striped cardigans, plain pull-overs, and plaid "poncho" sweaters were extremely popular.

Clothes and hair-dos were certainly sharp in '62.

Sporting hair-dos of varying lengths and shapes, gals wore pixie cuts, bouffants and the page boy. Brenda Beshear Ann Abernethy and Eileen Whitworth model their coiffures.

Susan Downey searches desperately for a pencil in her trunk-sized purse as Cheryl Snyder and Cheryl Bauer dig into theirs. "Satchels" ranged from large to larger to huge.

Rollers in hair, 'phone in hand, and homework set aside, Doris Roesener demonstrates one of the typical positions of modern teenage relaxation. Many students prefer more conventional plans for study, utilizing a desk and chair, while still more Howeites do their lessons at the public library. Finishing our homework we use many facilities in order to make the grade.

Studies, extra-curricular and outside

Wearing steady shirts and hand holding are part of the spring scene typified by seniors, Peggy McCormick and Byron Buck as they leave school and head toward home and homework.

After-the-game dances always draw large crowds of happy Howeites. Spinning the records are usually various Indianapolis disc jockeys. Dances are sponsored by the Hi-Y and ROTC.

Howeites joined scores of the young and the young at heart to test and improve their skating ability when Indianapolis' newest recreational facility, the Ellenberger skating rink, was opened in November of 1961. Because of the success of the experimental rink, the Park Department now plans to construct several more of the popular skating rinks throughout the city.

activities broaden the lives of Howeites

When Howeites aren't in classes or doing homework, a wide variety of extra-curricular activities, from clubs to sports, is available for them.

Friday night openhouses sponsored by the Downey Avenue Christian Church, become an "essential" part of the life of Howeites.

The winter season became more delightful this year as Ellenberger Park opened its new outdoor ice skating rink. For some, skating was a new thing, but after practice and many falls, they learned the "hang" of the slippery sport.

Jobs take up much of some students' time. Junior librarians learn how to keep their places of business quiet and orderly, while soda jerks specialize in chocolate sundaes and friendly conversation. When the steady hasn't called, many girls will earn "mad money" by baby-sitting for the family next door.

With the responsibility of a job often comes the pleasure of owning a car. The school's parking lot testifies to the imagination of many guys with their "bomb," while some boys and most of the girls have borrowed Dad's more conservative "wheels."

Meeting at Laughner's inside, enthusiastic seniors bring with them lots of noise and whoopla and their ridiculous costumes from their annual basketball battle with the Faculty Fatmen.

where students gain useful knowledge for later life. This school year, classes met for eleven months, because summer school was offered at Howe for the first time. To fulfill the reason for our being here, this is Thomas Carr Howe High School in classes.

Mike Dugan, Bill Gilkison, Steve Koepper, Ann Cole and Linda Huff were this year's representatives to Hoosier Boys' and Girls' State. During their two weeks stay at Indiana University, the students not only learned valuable information concerning governmental procedures, but were given the opportunity to run for a state office.

Exceptional students gain recognition

Mr. Tobin offers congratulations to Susan Straith-Miller, national winner of the NCTE Award which is presented to students who have attained outstanding achievement in English.

Vying for top honors in the class of '62, seniors Steve Koepper, Andrea Tempelmyer, and Allen Hatcher have found that hard work has been profitable in their years at Howe.

Five Howe seniors, Terry Cooper, Allen Hatcher, Bill Hoff, Jim McClure and Larry Sachs, have qualified as semifinalists for Merit Scholarships. They are among 10,000 national top-scoring students on the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test. Their names were sent to accredited colleges and universities for recommendation for financial assistance in college.

and honors in many fields of endeavor

Special talents and outstanding scholarship and leadership have their reward in personal satisfaction on the part of the individual. As an added incentive, however, special recognitions are accorded students with outstanding abilities.

One of these honors is a National Merit Scholarship. Five senior boys were semi-finalists this year: Jim McClure, Terry Cooper, Bill Hoff, Larry Sachs, and Allen Hatcher.

At the 1961 Honors Day program, Jeannie Kightlinger and Bill Gilkison were chosen American Legion Good Citizens. Alice Abbott received the Altrusa Club award for leadership, scholarship, citizenship, and service. Similar qualities enabled Lynda Barnes to be selected DAR good citizen. Sponsored by the American Legion, Mike Dugan and Steve Koepper attended Hoosier Boys' State at I.U. last summer.

Those who are willing to work hard have a successful student life and become leaders in society.

Bill Gilkison and Jeannie Kightlinger, American Legion Good Citizens; Alice Abbot, Altrusa Award winner; and Lynda Barnes, DAR Good Citizen, were honored by civic clubs.

Lab experiments,

Sophomores show off their talents as real "cut-ups." Talents in dissecting and other fall biology subjects are revealed for visitors during Howe's open house.

TOP — With the current threat of radioactive fallout in mind, Mike Weaver and Pat Overmyer, in physics lab, measure the presence of radiation in a compound by using a Geiger counter. LEFT — In the physics lab, Bill Gilkison sets up a block and tackle to demonstrate a simple machine. Experiments help the student understand scientific principles.

research increase interest in science

Facing the challenge and race for outer space, the United States government has stressed the immediate need for highly educated technologists and scientists, who will lead the American people into the unknown. Realization that the use and application of science principles has become increasingly important, has enlarged the science requirement for graduation to two years of a laboratory science.

Both freshman and senior physical science provide a general background for Howe students. However, in order to fulfill the science requirement, one may choose from such specialized courses as biology, chemistry, and physics. Extra projects in such courses often result in scholarships and awards for students at regional and state contests. Class and laboratory work combine to teach the students both the practical and experimental aspects of science.

Tanya Fisher rushes through the frantic last minute details of getting her insect collection ready to hand in. Like many sophomores, Tanya was relieved when the ordeal was over.

After setting up this experiment and observing its results, Ruth Ann Tedrowe completes her lab report concerning the process of the distillation of water. This experiment consists of evaporation followed by condensation of the vapors in a separate vessel. For the first time, the chemistry classes are dealing with experimental and laboratory work.

Future business men and women practice

Working on a filing problem, Sharon Davis, Kay McGilliard, Judy Ling, and Lorraine Day complete a job answer sheet which was to be filled out and handed in at the end of the fourth period.

Sandy Bourne, Karen Haschild, Judy DeLashmit, and Connie Henry, strive for a high grade in Shorthand, as they take dictation for five minutes at a rate of 110 words per minute.

Striving for both speed and accuracy at the exploration and control levels, these students type a conditioning practice exercise at the beginning of their Typing I class every day. As they advance, the students' week is made up of timed writings, tabulating problems, manuscript work, and letter forms. This experience is valuable in the business field and college.

skills for tomorrow

The Business Education Department at Howe offers prospective secretaries, bookkeepers, and other business majors a large array of courses to take. Many Howeites find typing to be a valuable course to take because it helps speed up homework. Numerous girls find that shorthand comes in handy when it comes to taking notes in class.

Members of the Business Education Department and other interested Howe students have an opportunity to enter the NOMA Spelling Contest. A list of one hundred words must be spelled correctly. If they succeed in spelling all of them correctly, they receive a certificate.

The Business Managers play an important role in the business and financial life at Howe. Under the sponsorship of Mr. John Trinkle the business managers take care of advertising for extra curricular activities such as plays and athletic events. Taking care of the financial records for all events they manage is another job of the Business Managers. Seniors receive a medal for service.

While computing the answer to an assigned problem, this machine calculation class learns the details in adding, subtracting, multiplying, and dividing by the use of a comptometer.

ter. For those students not planning to enter college upon graduation, experience in operating these machines proves to be valuable in preparing them for future office work.

Eleven math courses offered to pupils

In his geometry class Mr. Rehm shows three students, Bill Goines, Christine Whitmore, and Peggy Barnes, the details in erecting a perpendicular from a given point on the line AB.

Mrs. Wilcox instructs Jim McClure in finding the length of a curve by the use of fundamental calculus derivatives. It is possible to receive a college credit from this advanced course.

The mathematics department at Howe is one of the finest in any of the state's high schools. Having the advantage of many excellent teachers, a student is able to obtain the math needed for daily living or for the challenges of college.

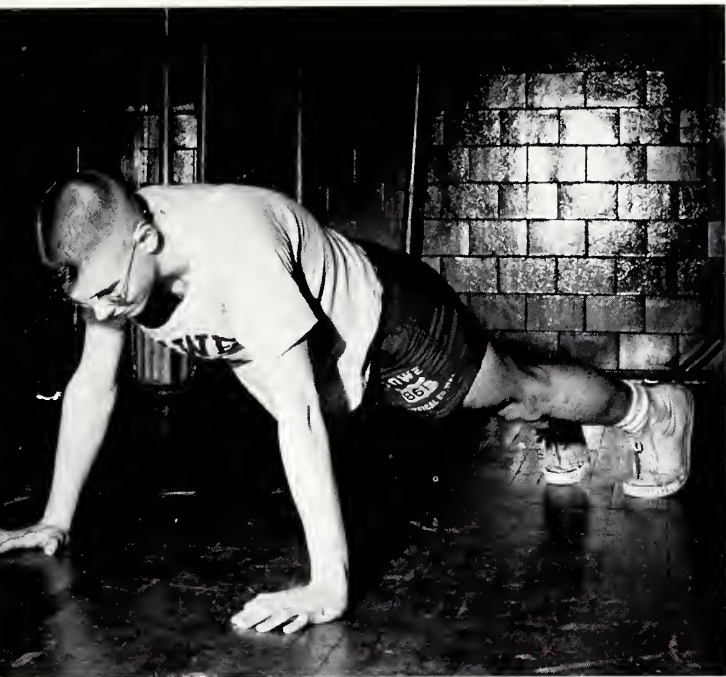

A freshman enrolls in either algebra or general math. After a year of fundamentals and factoring, the algebra student takes up the angles, polygons, and circles of geometry. Following days of work and error, the proof of the Pythagorean Theorem is completed. The college-bound student is offered eleven semesters of study to prepare him for higher-level work. Trigonometry, college algebra, and calculus, top the list. What calculus student does not remember the proofs that are "evident to anyone who can read." This effort now pays great dividends later.

Some of the eager students who gain pleasure from working mathematical problems compete in the regional and state contests. Howe is always strongly represented in this competition, and the Howeytes capture their share of the awards.

Vicki Shook demonstrates the correct serving procedure, as Charlene Beck and Helen Price enjoy a delicious dessert which was prepared as a project in food preparation class.

Domestic courses offer practical skill

Home economics offers elective courses which teach that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach. From the kitchen come tempting aromas which fill the lower floor. Foods students learn to make desserts and salads and then advance to complete meals. They serve a full-course meal to members of the faculty, and at Christmastime the girls give a party for their little brothers and sisters.

Future seamstresses are well-prepared at Howe, too. The girls often make their own clothes.

Also included in the department are home management and home nursing courses. Basic principles of first aid are taught in the nursing classes.

The Junior Red Cross Club works closely with the home ec. department as the members pack boxes to be sent to needy people overseas. A pin is awarded to girls who have given twenty-five hours of service.

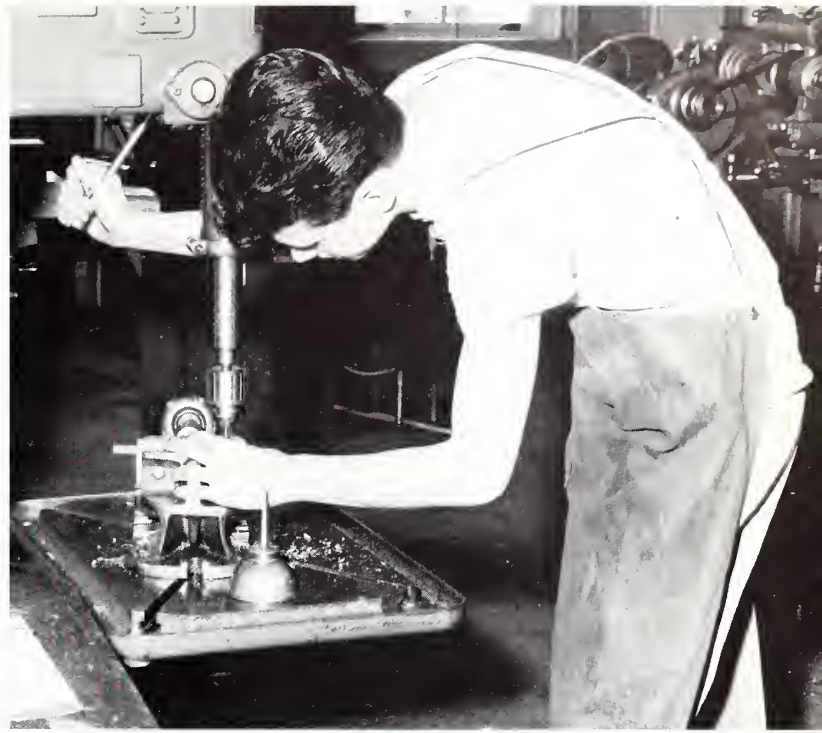

Busy homemakers of tomorrow receive practical experience in the home economics department.

As they begin a project in their double period clothing class, Joan Wild and Carole Tuschhoff measure the width of a piece of material as Jane Wild and Vicki Vest pin the pattern.

Many desirable and useful items for the home are made by the boys in wood shop classes. Rick Newman squares a board as he adds the finishing touches to his second project.

Mike Morris drills stock as he prepares to make a hand tool in metal shop. This course is one of many electives which offer knowledge and skill to be carried over into the future.

and knowledge for careers and future

While the aroma of delectable food arises from the home economics classes in the lower corridor, a much different odor, that of sawdust and oil, comes from the industrial arts classes in the south-east wing of the building.

A course in one of the industrial arts gives boys the opportunity to practice skills that may one day become a part of their lives. The boys learn the fundamentals of such trades as printing, carpentry, metal work, and draftsmanship. They may elect machine, architectural, or airplane drawing after they have completed a basic course in mechanical drawing. Hand tools, bookcases, and hi-fi cabinets are just a few of the many articles produced by the boys in wood and metal shop.

Almost all of Howe's printing needs, including tickets, programs, and forms for classes and special events, are provided by the boys in print shop.

Printers Ralph Kent and Tom Warren lock a form of type ready for the press. Print shop classes have produced everything from bookmarks to dance tickets to official forms.

Art enables gifted students to express their creativity in such assignments as was given by Mrs. DeWaard. Here, the students are working on original tree and landscape designs. These Howeites and others in the various art courses are often called upon to provide posters and large banners for the purpose of advertising coming Howe events.

Fine arts classes provide creativity,

Art offers talented students the opportunity to express their ideas or feelings on paper, canvas, or in raw materials. The many courses which constitute the art department provide much more than a chance to pick up an extra credit. They offer students valuable knowledge and skill which may be put to use in future work or in the home.

After an introductory course of craft arts, Howeites may elect a course dealing with a specific branch of art study. Those who like to create objects from raw material with their hands may choose such classes as jewelry, plastics, or sculpturing.

Further chances for creativity come with work in crayon, paints, or ink on paper or canvas. Lettering classes plan and execute posters, banners, certificates, etc. Much of their work is evident in the halls of Howe. Commercial art often serves as preparation for a career in the field of advertising.

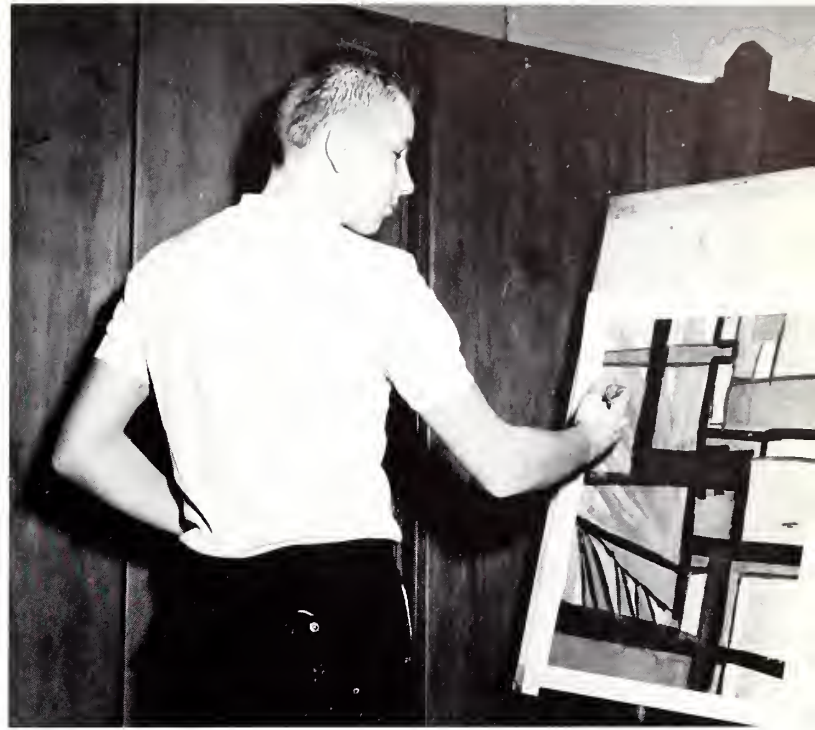

Display cases by the main entrance exhibit samples of student work in oil and other media; on the lower floor, a showcase displays the work of jewelry and sculpture classes. Talents of the students in the art department are evident in the number of Scholastic Art Awards which they win.

Julie Michael uses a magazine in order to get an idea of an up-to-date style for her drawing. The fashions class, a more specific art course, is chosen by students talented in this field.

Attractive and ornamental pieces of finery are made by hand from raw materials in jewelry class. Lois Lynch prepares to polish her project as one of the final steps in completing it.

To the average Howeite, this painting may contain little meaning; but Olaf Moetus considers his work as a masterpiece of abstract art as he completes it in advanced art.

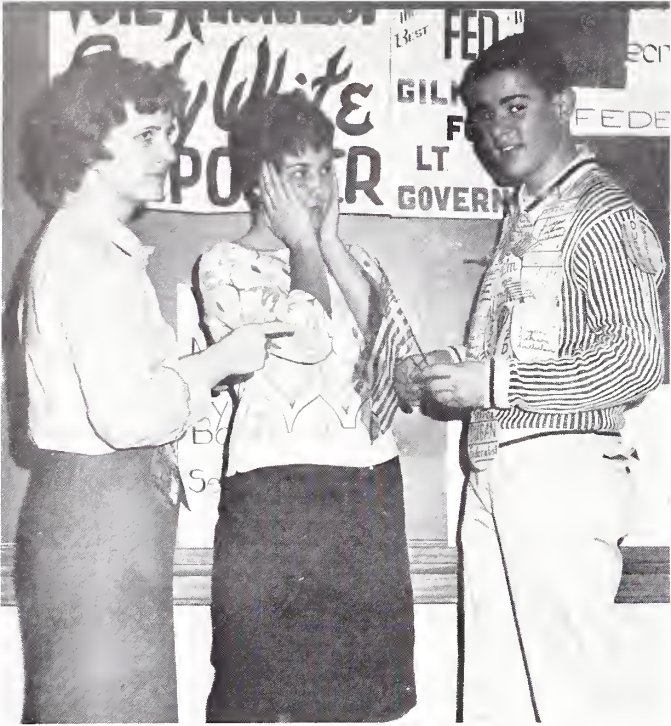

expression for many talented Howeites

Pat Weber completes his scratch board, a technique used extensively in advertising, in commercial arts class. A design is scratched upon paper which is covered with India ink.

Paula Stanifer chose a figurine as her ceramics project in Craft Arts. After she has finished molding the clay, shellac will be applied, and as a final step, it will be baked.

Surrounded by posters and campaign buttons of opposing views, Sally Stafford refuses to listen as Susie Oswalt and Bill Aronis attempt to persuade her to vote for their party.

Clerk Marcia Townsend calls the roll of the representative cities at the Nationalist State Convention, as tabulator Ruth McClure records the information for attendance purposes.

Elections, stocks, and current events

Victorious candidates, Mike Dugan, Lynda Barnes, and Bill Gilkison, congratulate each other on capturing the offices of Governor, Sec. of State, and Lt. Governor, respectively.

"And if I'm elected, I promise to have a new football stadium built here on the Howe campus," shouts a hopeful candidate in the annual Howe Mock Elections. The Social Studies Department sponsors the thrilling event for those enrolled in government and economics classes. The purpose is to increase Howe students' knowledge of election fundamentals. The four week unit covers local, county, and state procedures.

After a state chairman has been selected for each party, the Nationalists and Federalists begin holding caucuses and making colorful posters. A number of people seeking to get the party nomination apply for an office. At an exciting convention, the candidates are carefully selected; then begins the wild campaigning. Rallies are held in the halls before school with rousing speeches and blaring bands. Loyal party members wear unique badges as the one week campaign period nears its completion. When the returns are counted, the newly elected office holders know that the weeks of worry and skipping homework were not in vain. They had certainly profited from their political experiences.

The affirmative team of Anne Headlee and Jim Sinclair defend Federal Aid to Education on "Junior Town Meeting," while Easy Gwinn records and Clark Johnson moderates.

add interest to Social Studies units

"What was the purpose of the pyramids built by the ancient Egyptians?" "What is the present high stock on the market?" These questions and even more varied ones were asked every day in different classes of Howe's social studies department. While government classes studied how a bill is passed in Congress, economics classes invested imaginary money in stocks and bonds on Wall Street, and U.S. history students relived the Civil War on its centennial anniversary. Students of psychology, sociology, commercial geography, Latin American history, international relations, and world history made up the remainder of the history department.

Howe history classes participate each year in the "Junior Town Meeting," a radio broadcast by students of Indianapolis high schools. This year, U.S. history students of Mr. Phillip Brown discussed the pros and cons of government aid to private and parochial schools broadcast was over WIBC radio.

During a study of the War of the Rebellion, Mr. Vencel points out an important battle area to two of his students, Virginia Richardson and Robert Rhoades in their U.S. History I class.

A group of dignified and disciplined young men are enrolled in Howe's military program for the purpose of preparing themselves for their term in the armed forces after graduation.

In order to earn money for their annual Military Ball, the cadet corps have worked at after-game dances and have sponsored a few of these dances themselves. They have also helped with the decorations at various school-sponsored dances.

The six R.O.T.C. sponsors are chosen on the basis of scholastic standings and on a theme which they are required to write. The girls are then screened by a faculty committee, voted on by the student body, and chosen by the cadets.

The Boys' Rifle Team, an honor group having won nearly every award offered in this area for the last three years, is under the direction of 1st Lt. Steve Edwards. The Girls' Rifle Team, sponsored by Miss Dorothea Kirk, is one of the few of its kind in the county. Weekly meeting of both teams are aimed at improving individual scores and preparing members for competition with other schools.

Although Howeites often spend time decorating theme tablets and writing notes in study hall, this period often means that one book less will have to be carried home in the evenings.

Diane Robinson, sophomore, and Nancy Watson, freshman, receive advice from Miss Maryon Welch about planning their schedules to include both required and elective courses.

Counseling proves helpful to students

Study plays a large role in the life of a Howeite. Late hours spent on books often cause red eyes the next morning. Much homework and cramming for tests is done in study hall. Each student is required to have a study hall as a part of his program, and the time he spends in study hall is well-spent, although not always in study. We will never forget the joker who puts paper in the electric fan, or the inevitable character whose snores are interrupted only by a trip to the dean's office.

Choosing our studies is often a dilemma, and the guidance of our teachers and counselors is very helpful. English students know well the "composition conference." These twenty-minute sessions between pupil and teacher are held once a semester and are established so that teachers can evaluate with their students their work and offer suggestions for improvement. Many language and math teachers have set up "help sessions" for those who are behind.

Library passes are issued to those wishing to do research for term papers or reports, who come from study halls to use the library facilities.

Carla Pursley, one of Howe's student librarians, checks out a book for Shirley Cobb. Student librarians work during their library practice period, learning "the tricks of the trade."

Carol Oslos receives help on her daily Latin translation from Jane Brown and Bob Stevens. This method of learning is often used by many Latin students in order to improve their grades.

Miss Hall listens for proper inflection and accents of a group of her students, as they pronounce their Spanish vocabulary. Spanish is becoming a popular course with the students.

A minor in foreign language, English

During French lab, students listen to tape recordings and records in order to improve their pronunciation and comprehension of the language. The lab has proved to be very useful.

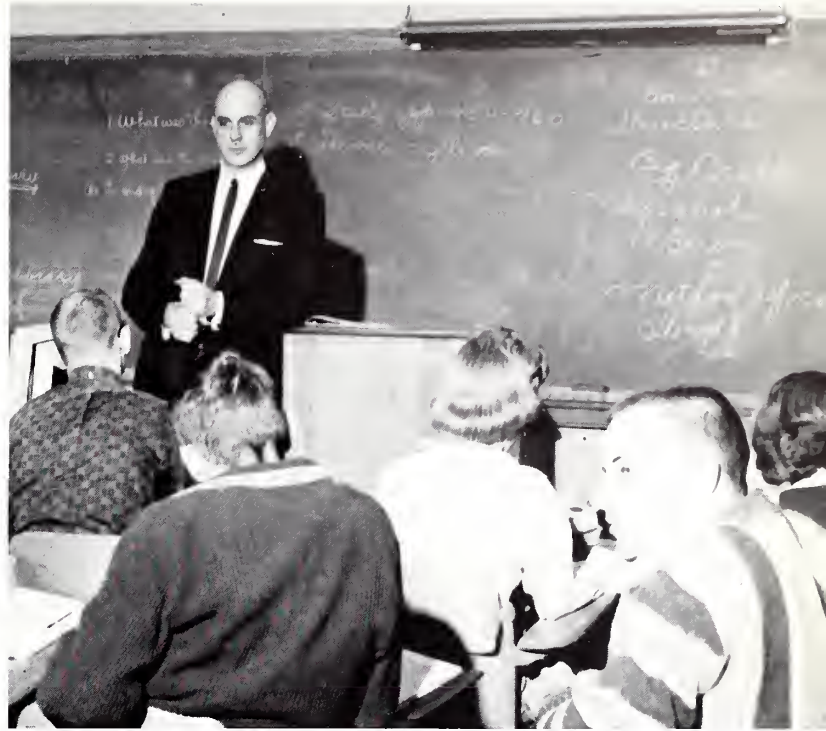

The need for interpreters and translators in the field of foreign relations has become increasingly important in solving international problems during the last few years. As a result, the study of foreign languages has become more popular. French, Spanish, and Latin, as well as a course in Greek and Latin Derivatives are the courses offered by Howe's foreign language department.

The relatively new language lab has added to the extensiveness of the language program. The twenty-eight booth lab with a teacher console unit enables students to improve their pronunciation and comprehension of a language with the aid of recordings without disturbing class functions.

To enhance student interest, other devices such as films, slides, demonstrations, reports, and supplementary materials are used. French and Spanish pupils learn additional material from speakers who come from the lands where their languages originated. In addition to everyday class work, language students often participate in regional and state contests, receiving honors for their achievements.

An eye for correct grammar is necessary for potential copy-readers. English VJ students Virginia Georgia, Tom Gilkison and Pat Harrell gain experience by copyreading galleys.

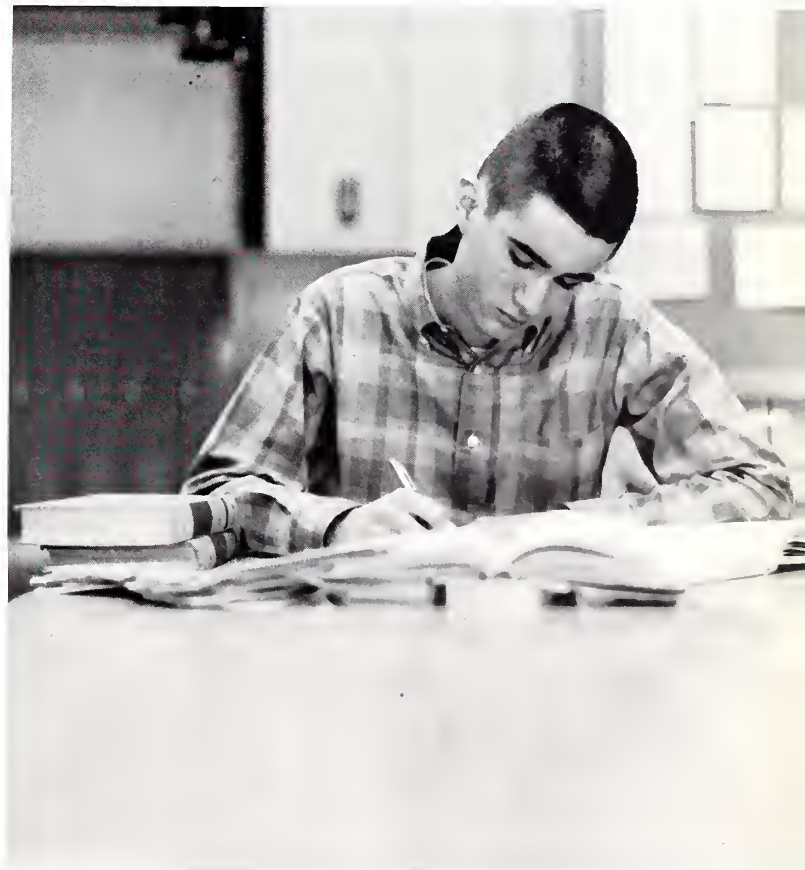

Mr. Tobin, in one of his more familiar poses, listens to one of his English VIII students describe the symbolism shown in the book "1984." This class is a college preparatory course.

I-VIII necessary for academic diploma

Special projects, as well as the required literature and grammar study contribute to pupil development in English. A research paper in English III acquaints Howites with the basic rules of writing a bibliography and the correct method of foot-noting, important to college aspirants. In English V, students write vocational essays, which aid in the selection of a career. In an elected fourth year of English, seniors gain further insight into English literature and grammar. Each semester "G" classes are offered, giving students a chance for further study and outside activities. Through these comprehensive courses, English students have earned top honors in local and national contests.

The department also offers two fine elective courses, public speaking and library practice. A semester of reading lab is required of all Howites. This non-credit course increases both the reading ability and the comprehension of the student.

Working his way through stacks of books, magazines and pamphlets, Dean Bolden adds the finishing touches to his English VII term paper in order to meet an approaching deadline.

Second year of exchange program takes

During his stay at Howe, Mr. Pike has taken part in many activities. Here he enjoys the action of the Senior-Faculty basketball game in which he was a candidate for faculty king.

This year was the second year of Howe's participation in the Exchange Teacher Program, in which an instructor from Howe takes the place of a British instructor and vice versa for one year. This year, Mr. Kenneth Pike, from Southampton, England, exchanged positions with Howe's Mr. Frank Tout.

A graduate of London University, Mr. Pike taught English and coached rugby at King Edward VI School in Southampton. After crossing the Atlantic in mid-August and meeting Mr. Tout in New York, Mr. Pike toured the U. S. before coming to Indianapolis.

Before going to Southampton and during vacations from classes, Mr. Tout also did his share of traveling by visiting nearly every country in Europe. By doing this, he put about 10,000 miles on his newly-purchased Volkswagon bought in England.

Both teachers agree that courses are stricter in the U. S. than in England, but both agree that the program has achieved its purpose — to better the understanding between peoples of the world.

Since arriving in the United States, Mr. Pike has traveled 10,000 miles in his foreign Austin-Minister car. The emblem on his car shows that he belongs to the Auto Association which is similar to our AAA. Mr. Pike remarked that the license plate of an English car is used for the entire life of the car. Comments are constantly made about his right-hand drive car.

Tout to Southampton; Howe obtains Pike

Mr. Frank Tout and Mr. Richard Carey, a former math teacher at Rugby School, enter King Edward VI School in England where Mr. Tout is an exchange teacher.

These senior boys in the third year VI form are given an opportunity to compare their school and social activities in England to ours by reading various issues of the Tower.

An everyday view of English boys going home at four o'clock includes hockey sticks, school uniforms, satchels and short trousers. About 75% of the boys ride their bicycles to school;

most of the rest walk. Hockey, a popular sport, is played during the spring term. The huts in the background are paving the way for a new Science Block, in process of erection.

musical competition and concert work

Howe's musicians had a year full of honors and glory as they shone at the top of competitions all over the state. The band and orchestra performed expertly at the State Band and Orchestra Contest in May. Soloists and small ensembles rated almost a perfect "first" record at the regional and state Solo and Ensemble Contests. Howe sent a larger number of players to the All-City Symphony and Band than did any other school.

The Madrigals, singing melodies a cappella in old English style and harmony, met many engagements during their busy year. Besides their regular schedule of meetings and programs, the group also sang for a radio program in the fall.

Basketball games were enlivened by the Pep Band with their jazz, pep, and school songs. Members of the concert band volunteered their time for the Pep Band.

Boosters of the Howe basketball team enjoyed the rousing music of the Pep Band, composed of members of the concert band, who played regularly at home basketball games.

Musically inclined

Sounds of scales and arpeggios float out of the Howe Music Department and mingle with the regular sounds of student laughter and talk as musically inclined Howeites intently study composers and perform with amateur perfection their compositions. The department includes the Howe Choir, Choralaires, boys' and girls' octets, glee clubs, orchestra, pep band and Madrigals.

Members of the Choralaires, the girls' singing organization under the direction of Mr. Frank Watkins, filled the halls with singing during the fourth period as they rehearsed for their many performances during the year. Performances included the annual Christmas Sing, the May Pageant, and the May Music Festival.

The boys' octet consisted of boys selected from the choir and an accompanist. They sang several varieties of tunes, ranging from popular songs to arrangements of classical melodies, but they specialized in singing semi-classical music. The octet sang for P.T.A. meetings, assemblies, church activities, and various other functions over the city.

in Choralaires, Choir, and Octets

During the first hour of every school morning, the east wing rings with the music of the school choir. Directed by Frank S. Watkins, the organization, the most advanced vocal group in the school, performs for various functions. Within our own walls, the choir has sung for the PTA and student assemblies at their respective meetings. Their voices were heard at Open House, the May Pageant, and at the spring Music Festival. The choir journeyed to several neighborhood churches, and was also heard at the Irvington Chain of Missions program. Radio WIBC recorded the choir for their program, "Young America Sings." The choir was last heard as they pronounced the benediction at Commencement.

The Girls' Octet, harmonious as it is attractive, is composed of eight of the best feminine voices in the school. They give nearly fifty programs a year for civic and church groups, conventions and radio broadcasts. "Pop" Watkins also directs this group.

P.R.R. Hollywooders bring weathermen,

Along with endless rehearsals came long hours of instructions from act chairmen and faculty sponsors. Here, act members go over a part in the act with chairman Vicky Kemper.

Denny Wickes sang "I'm Just a Poor, Wayfaring Stranger," an old American folk song, as a scenery change act. The royal court waited in attendance as Barb Zumwalt and Ron

Each year Howe students turn into budding Hollywood citizens as they write, direct, and act in the annual Pleasant Run Revue, Howe's musical variety show consisting of four major acts and several between acts. Work begins in September with costuming, scenery designing and production, and rehearsals. Finally, in November, two performances are given of the big show.

The acts chosen this year were varied as well as entertaining. "Capricious Cards," the antics of the King and Queen of Hearts and their court during a poker game, was written by Vicky Kemper and Jeannie Kightlinger. "The Magic Toyshop," by Nancy Carroll and Cindy McMillan, told the story of an enchanting toyshop opened and brought to life for a little girl by her fairy godmother. Sherri Bell and Nancy Bowman assigned a special type of weather to each part of the world in the act "Weather Around the World." In "Gadabout Greetings," by Jo Pheasant and Lissa Purdy, greeting cards for various occasions came to life for a little girl.

Nurse Nancy Stewart persuaded her patient, Bob Bruner, to get rid of his wheel chair and dance as they portrayed a get-well card in "Gadabout Greetings."

Mixed-up weathermen Larry Sachs, Mike Dugan, and Mike Bruney decided what kind of weather the world was going to receive in "Weather Around the World."

"On With the Show, This is It!" sang the opening chorus to introduce the 1961 Pleasant Run Revue, the musical variety show directed and presented by Howe students and faculty sponsors. Each year, Mr. Bruce Beck, Director of Productions, devotes many hours toward the making of a top-notch program. Singers are soloists John Stevenson and Joellen Wagner, Rosemary Bassett, Sue Oswalt, Barbara Zumwalt, Lissa Purdy, Jo Pheasant, Cassandra Kamp, and Susan Robinson.

The Violet Queen and her royal court view their domain. The Court is: Mike Bruney, Pat McGuire, Jim Gray, Barbara Hedding, Queen Rosemary Bassett, Linda Thompson, Don Cotton, Carolyn Vasil, and Woody Garland. Pages are Margaret Grindstaff and Kathy Robertson; the Flower Girl is Michelle Staton, the daughter of Howe teacher, Mr. Ralph Staton.

Pageantry unfolds at Howe's birthday

Everyone has a birthday, and Howe is no exception. Each year in May, a birthday celebration is held on Violet Hill in front of Howe. The ceremony is modeled after an old English custom, the village May Festival, and includes dancing of traditional and foreign dances, acrobatics, and the beautiful Maypole dance. Each year a queen is chosen by the junior class to reign over the festivities along with her court of junior princesses and their escorts. Pages are Howe underclassmen and the flower girl is usually the daughter of a Howe teacher.

This year's Philosopher, Webb Garrison, addressed the student body, then assured Queen Rosemary Bassett that Howewites would not disappoint her trust in them for achievement in the coming year. The Violet Queen then retired to her home in Violet Hill, to return next year to view her domain and to bring anew her challenge of achievement.

Dancers from a gym class perform the may-pole dance honoring Rosemary Bassett, Howe's twenty-third Violet Queen, at the annual May Pageant, the official birthday celebration.

Students pledge scholarship in NHS

Howe's chapter of the NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY, one of more than five thousand in the country, was organized for the purpose of furthering scholarship, service, leadership, and character among high school pupils. Each year, enough students are nominated to fulfill a maximum of ten per cent of the junior class and fifteen per cent of the senior class in membership. All nominees and members must maintain a 6.00 grade average. A formal initiation service is held in December at which time the nominees receive their cards and pins and members renew their pledge to carry out the goals of the Honor Society.

The NHS symbol is a keystone of learning with a torch of knowledge and the letters C, S, L, and S, for Character, Service, Leadership, and Scholarship.

CHESS CLUB

The chess club, sponsored by British exchange teacher Mr. Kenneth Pike, provides entertainment, challenge, practice, and instruction for its members. Membership requirements are an interest in chess and an eagerness to play. Members are (SEATED, front) Self and Clark; (STANDING) Spear, Cook, Coffin, Trusty, Wahl, Shelland, Schiavarelli, Harris, Dentler.

Competition sharp in debates, chess

Howeites interested in chess are encouraged to match wits with competitors both inter- and intramural in the Howe Chess Club. Members of the lively club gain experience while having fun and meeting new people. The club was organized as a result of several boys who used to gather at lunch time to enjoy a brain-teasing game of chess after the meal.

The fast-talkers and debaters of Howe have organized the Forensic club. This year's active club has competed in school, regional and state-wide contests, and has returned with many awards and citations for work well done. Members are encouraged to participate in oratorical, humorous, poetic, or dramatic fields of competition.

SPEECH CLUB

Speech club members compete in school and state contests while learning fine points of public speaking. Sponsored by Mr. Steven Briggs, the club encourages all Howeites interested

Class of '62 dances in "Shangri-La"

Excited juniors of the Class of '62 spent many hours in preparation for the highlight of the year, the Junior Prom. When the theme, "Shangri-La," was announced, committees transformed the gym into an oriental paradise. Each table was enhanced by colorful fan centerpieces and Japanese umbrellas as each chair. A mural of an oriental countryside lined the walls, and a garden with thatched teahouse, redbud tree, and a stone walk leading to a pool of water, was the focal point.

Japanese lanterns hanging from billowing clouds of converted orange and white parachutes and a mammoth, sparkling, oriental globe helped to carry out the theme of the

The Brown and Gold is the first and biggest fall dance. The HILLTOPPER staff sponsors and decorates for this dance each year. Dreamy music was provided by the Debonaires this year. The main decoration was a garden scene. The candidates for Brown Boy and Golden Girl walked through the garden and onto the stage. Minutes of anticipation and excitement passed before Mr. Thomas Stirling, principal, announced the reign of Nancy Bowman and John Leane. Other candidates were Jean Moore, Linda Bender, Jodi Dobbs, Doug Paul, Dan Breckenridge and Dick Woodbury.

The 1960 Turnabout Twirl, also sponsored by the HILLTOPPER staff, is an annual spring dance. The theme of the dance was "April in Paris." This is the night the girls pay for the tickets, chauffeur their dates, present them with hand-made corsages, and treat them to a nighttime snack. Prizes were awarded for the corsages in differing categories.

The highlight of the Brown and Gold was the crowning of the Brown Boy and Golden Girl. Nancy Bowman and John Leane, both seniors, were selected to reign over the evening.

and time to serving school pupils

Student Council sponsors activities that create an interest among the student body. This council consists of one representative from each homeroom who serves a one-year term. The representative may be elected to a second term. Members of the Student Council elect seven officers. These persons make up the cabinet and meet with the teacher sponsors who are Mr. Moon, Mr. Wood, and Mr. Schroder to organize the group's business. Mrs. Loew is the adviser.

The activities of the council this year have been numerous. President Denny Wickes is also a member of the National Traffic Safety Council. Representatives to the City Student Council are Dick Woodbury and Jim Thomas. Lynda Barnes attended the National Student Council Leadership Conference. Every year the council sponsors a clean-up campaign to keep the students alert to the appearance of their school. It also sponsors an annual Senior-Faculty basketball game which is exciting and amusing for both the student body and the faculty. The Student Council also organizes and plans a talent assembly. This program displays the talent which Howe has to offer.

Student Council sponsors a clean-up campaign annually. By cleaning their locker, Nancy Wagaman, Ann Arbogast and Nancy Hillring are doing their part to keep the school neat.

The purpose of the Footlight Revelers Club is to further the cause of high school dramatics by giving students opportunities to participate in dramatic presentations. Any student taking part in a school production is considered a member of the club. Footlight Revelers is sponsored by Mr. Bruce Beck. President of this year's group is Joe Nelson.

This spring the Revelers presented "Henrietta The Eighth" under the guidance and supervision of Mrs. Hariette Baker and Mr. Beck. The comedy was written by Mr. Gordon Kurtz. Henrietta is the eighth secretary of the Sutton family, and the three Sutton girls plan to use her as a private maid, but Henrietta has a different idea.

Other Reveler presentations included the Pleasant Run Revue, P.T.A. Fun Night, May Pageant, and Christmas programs. Some members of the group have actual roles in the presentation, while others are on make-up, costuming, prompting, or ushering committees. Several of the members have the distinction of belonging to the National Honorary Thespian Society. Eligibility is based on the number of points earned for work on the club's productions.

and excitement for many boys of Howe

The two clubs for the boys of Howe are Hi-Y (juniors and seniors), and Beta Hi-Y (freshmen and sophomores). The purpose of both clubs is "to create, maintain and extend throughout home, school, and community high standards of Christian character."

The activities of the two clubs are similar. Both have swimming parties during the year at the East-side Y.M.C.A. The boys sell refreshments and check coats at home basketball games to make money for various projects. Hi-Y also sponsors several "after-game" dances. One of the most exciting Hi-Y activities is the Model UN. Members of Tri-Hi-Y and Hi-Y clubs in Marion County annually participate in the Model UN, portraying the role of representatives from various nations. Another Hi-Y activity is the spring Sweetheart Dance. Members nominate girls as Sweetheart candidates, and final choice is made by those attending the dance. Mr. Harry Totten is Hi-Y sponsor; Mr. Hugh Wolf is Beta-Hi-Y sponsor.

Candidates are nominated by members of Hi-Y, and the Sweetheart is elected by those attending the dance.

Active girls of Howe attend meetings,

Tri-Hi-Y is one of the largest and most active clubs at Howe. Any junior or senior girl may become a member. The activity which highlights the year's events is the Model UN which is fashioned after the UN in New York. Delegates from Tri-Hi-Y and Hi-Y clubs throughout Marion County participate, portraying roles of representatives from foreign countries.

Tri-Hi-Y has other different activities. The club has several swimming parties during the year at the Eastside Y.M.C.A. Speakers bring beneficial messages to the members and add variety to the programs. New members are introduced and presented with membership pins at an induction ceremony in October, while new officers are elected in the spring. Seven officers were elected this year instead of five as in the past. The newly created positions are that of sergeant at arms and historian. Mrs. Hariette Baker is sponsor.

The seven officers of Tri-Hi-Y are Martha Schmidt, sergeant-at-arms; Cynthia McMillan, vice-president; Marilyn Smith, secretary; Andrea Tempelmeyer, historian; Judith Himes, treasurer; Doris Roesener, chaplain; and Pam Butler, president.

Crazy hats were the order of the day at the Mad Hatters Ball. The event, sponsored by Selofra, was climaxed by a march to the office to show off their creations.

Selofra is a club for freshmen girls. The club promotes friendship by giving the girls an opportunity to meet and to become acquainted with each other. Each girl is given a green ribbon to wear to signify she is a member of the freshman class. Selofra meets twice a month, with programs which are varied and interesting. Activities included in their programs are panel discussions, parties, a mixer, and a style show. Selofra has a mixer for 9B's in January to acquaint the new students with their school and their classmates. The style show is presented annually by this club. The girls of the club write, direct, and produce the show. They also model clothes which they have made or which they have in their wardrobes to show current styles and fads. Another interesting activity is a demonstration presented by a beauty consultant who gives the girls hints about hair styles and general appearance.

TOWER expands to serve Howe better in

When is the last time that your assignment was to count the number of Exit signs, or to find the twins and triplets attending Howe? For the staff of the Howe Tower, unusual assignments become a routine.

As a result of increased publication this year, the Tower is able to provide its subscribers with a wider variety of news. This, of course, means an increase in budget as well. Midst comparing jokes and experiences, the staff creates the Howe Tower.

Staff reporters receive their assignments from those posted on the bulletin board in Room 240. Through interviews and research, the reporter's job is finished and the story is copy-read. Copyreaders make corrections in grammar, spelling, information, and style. The story is then printed in column form.

Jimmy Billups and Mike Bruney compare headline type to determine the right kind of stories. This year the Tower changed its entire copy and headline type schedule for all issues.

1962 through weekly news publication

SUBSET CLUB

Applegate, Augustus, Buchanan, Carter, Catron, Coyle, Cronckee, Freeman, Frushour, Grey, Horn, Keetay, Landis, Magruder, Maranda, Mathias, Meadows, Monroe, Ograd, Payne, Riley, Rugenstein, Runciman, Scott, Self, Shelland, Taylor, Tobias, Van Camp, and Vicars. Mrs. Smuck is sponsor.

Supplementing regular classwork with various aspects of mathematics, the Subset Club's program includes a study of modern algebra, use of the slide rule, making geometric models, and paper folding.

Tours of Nuclear Measurements and Esterline Angus Companies were included on Science Club field trips. Sponsored by Miss Jerry Motley, the club is associated with the Indiana Junior Academy of Science.

In addition to operating tape recorders, overhead viewers, and projectors, Audio-Visual Club members also learn proper maintenance of the equipment.

Speakers in various areas of education and movies representing different aspects of teaching composed the Future Teachers Club program. Sponsors are Mrs. Shirley McReynolds and Mr. Ralph Staton.

Rehabilitating cerebral palsied children as part of the "Teen Time" program is one of the Future Nurses Club's major projects. Films and lectures by graduates and pupils acquaint members with nursing.

With an eye toward the future, Home Economics Club members learn practical applications of their education through the guidance of club sponsor Miss Lois Coy and speakers from the homemaking field.

Typical Spanish customs are coordinated to produce the Spanish Club's Spanish Fiesta. Another highlight of the club's program is the International Tea, with pupils from foreign countries as guests.

An understanding of our Latin-American neighbors will develop through the knowledge of Spanish culture, songs, customs, and attitudes. This is one of Mr. Hulce's goals for the club as its sponsor.

Combining a study of the classics with modern social activities, pupils in Latin classes who are members of the Latin Club participates in such activities as slave sales, Roman weddings, and Saturnalia,

In affiliation with the state and national organizations of the Junior Classical League, members participate in the state and national conventions.

Miss Rork and Mrs. Cohee are Latin Club sponsors.

Interested Howe pupils with a knowledge of sound equipment supervise the public address system announcements each day during homeroom period. In addition, they are responsible for the care and operation of a central sound system for all school and extra-curricular functions. These pupils also help the music department make recordings.

P.A. OPERATORS

Public address system operators David Kinsey, Kenny Hopper, and Steve Blust supervise the central sound equipment throughout the daily announcements to all homerooms.

Junior Achievers prove that business

Twelve hundred Marion County teens from 20 public and parochial high schools cooperate with the J.A. program to organize their own businesses, operated parallel to full-scale business firms. They meet a night each week from October through May, from 7—9 P.M. at the J.A. center, 835 North Meridian Street.

Applications for membership are available to juniors and seniors at the annual J.A. assembly every September and through the Junior Achievement Center.

Representatives from local businesses underwrite the cost of the program and provide business advice. Helping each company with its advertising and sales, business procedures and accounting and production are the three adult advisers assigned to each group.

In May, at the conclusion of the J.A. year, each step of owning and operating the model business has been completed and the companies are liquidated.

Through the J.A. program, today's teens are given an opportunity to learn business practices under a free enterprise system. It provides a laboratory for the practical application of their education.

Jim McClure helps Betsy Robbins in the J.A. bank. Each J.A. company has its own bank account with this bank, operated by J.A. participants, and conducts all transactions through it.

In the lobby of the Junior Achievement headquarters is the display of the variety of products J.A. companies have made throughout the year. One product, a lamp, is examined by J.A. members Carolyn Clift, Judy Spargur, and Jim Pendleton. Other products include games, snacks, wearing apparel, first aid kits, stationery, door mats, and special Christmas items.

Promoting improved scholarship through closer parent-teacher relationships, the P.T.A. endeavors to serve Howe in many ways. "Know Howe" was the theme of the meetings this year. Faculty and parents contributed their talents at meetings throughout the year. Fun night featured a circus theme. Proceeds from P.T.A. service projects this year were earmarked to purchase an organ for Howe's new auditorium, to be completed in the fall of 1963.

The Spaghetti Supper highlights the program of the Men's 400 Club, composed of fathers and male guardians of Howe pupils, and male faculty members. Each year the club awards students for achievement in athletic and military assignments.

"Expedition Into Knowledge," televised once every three weeks by WLWI, is an elimination contest emphasizing a quick recall of facts based on academic knowledge. Representatives from fourteen public and parochial schools throughout Marion County participate in the broadcast. The quiz team, composed of four regulars and two alternates chosen by the faculty, practices weekly under the guidance of Miss Ellen O'Drain. George Willeford is the quiz master.

Diamondmen compile winning record in

One of the mainstays of the 1961 varsity baseball team was junior letterman Ron Yeskie. Most often a pitcher, Ron also played outfield, and he won the Most Valuable Player Award.

When a coach puts together a city championship team one year but loses nine players from this team, what can he expect for the following season? Usually, the coach can't expect too much, but Hornet coach Roscoe Pierson found this to be untrue. With six returning lettermen, Mr. Pierson built a team which sported an impressive ten won—three lost record and finished third in the city.

In his last year as varsity baseball coach, Roscoe Pierson led such baseball players as Ron Yeskie, Tim Witsman, Jack Simpson, Jim Parsons, Jay Bishop, and Jim Hower. Junior Ron Yeskie, most valuable player in 1960, was the Hornet's pitching ace as he won eight games against three losses. Yeskie was backed up by senior Jerry Baden and by sophomore Mike Martin. With a batting average of almost .350, Yeskie led all hitters and won the Most Valuable Player Award for the second year in a row.

The only losses of the 1961 season came at the hands of city champion Cathedral by three runs, city runner-up Broad Ripple by three runs, and county champion Southport by 16 runs.

Pierson's last year

Spirit and hard work enabled the varsity baseball team to compile a 10-3 record in Coach "Rocky" Pierson's last year at Howe. Strong hitting, sharp fielding, and accurate pitching helped the diamond-men gain success.

The Best Mental Attitude Award was won by senior letterman Jack Simpson, while the Most Improved Player Award went to junior letterman Jay Bishop. Selected captain by his teammates was senior letter winner Jim Hower.

A bright future is seen for the 1962 varsity base-season as the reserve team posted a record of eight wins against only four losses. The reserves, coached by Mr. Denny Krick, defeated Scecina twice but lost to Southport, Broad Ripple, and to Manual twice.

Coached by Mr. Harrison Richardson and Mr. Roger Schroder, the freshman baseball team listed a record of four wins and five losses. The frosh defeated Beech Grove twice, Broad Ripple, and Scecina.

The 1962 varsity baseball team, coached by Mr. Denny Krick, will have five returning lettermen.

Racquetmen display fine future promise

The 1961 tennis team, loaded with underclassmen, fought through a very rough schedule and posted a 5-8 record. All five racquetmen will return next season to form an experienced squad with great potential. In their seventh year of competition and last with Lyman Combs as coach, the Hornets scored victories over Warren Central, Crispus Attucks, Ben Davis, Seccina, and Manual. Besides these two-way meets, Howe also participated in the Lafayette and Columbus Tournaments and in the City Matches.

From the five outstanding players, Larry Carmichael was chosen Most Valuable Player, and he received the honor at the awards banquet. By a vote of his teammates, Steve Guidone was elected captain of the 1961 team.

Varsity cindermen

Displaying unusual scoring balance, Howe's 1961 track team swept through the season with an unblemished record in nine dual meets. The Hornets were at least two deep in most positions and won several very close contests by capturing those vital second and third places. Unlimited desire and the will to win were always evident, and these traits contributed most markedly to success in at least three of the outings. In victories over Ben Davis by 57-52, over Washington 55½-53½, and over Manual 55-53, one less second place would have reversed the decision. The spikesters again made a strong showing in the city meet when they captured a close fourth out of twelve competing schools. In the other six meets, The Hornets outscored their opponents in each by twenty-four or more points.

Howe sponsors the Hoosier Relays, a large in-door track meet run in the Indiana University Fieldhouse. Teams from all over the state compete in this annual event, and 1961 was the biggest yet. Many of the Hornet spikesters performed very well against the state's best and brought home medals for their efforts. Trophies, medals are given to individuals.

complete season with perfect record

The Hornets placed fifth in a total of twenty-two schools at the Washington Track Sectional. Leading scorers were Larry Pugh, placing in the 100 and 220 yard dashes and the 880 yard relay; Bill Harold, in the mile run; Dick Woodbury, in the high and low hurdles; Don Ambler, in the pole vault; and the remaining members of the 880 yard relay, Mike Earley, Wes McDivitt, and Pete Henshaw. These boys then participated in the Regional at Tech, and Bill Harold qualified for the State by taking a third place in the Tech Regional. With returning lettermen at almost every position, Coach Rex Anderson has a fine start toward the 1962 season.

Larry Pugh earned 116 points over the season and was chosen Most Valuable Player by his teammates. Larry ran both the dashes and anchored the half mile relay team that came up with several important triumphs. Ranking high in total points scored were Pete Henshaw, Dick Woodbury, and Bill Harold. The honor of being co-captains was conferred upon Henshaw and Harold. Mike Simmons was awarded the trophy for Best Mental Attitude for his clean sportsmanship and ability as a leader.

Leaping high in the air, broad jumper Jim Rayot strains for extra inches as the scorers wait to measure his leap. Jim is a valuable letterman who will return next year.

Reserve, Frosh boast brilliant seasons

The Hornet reserve cindermen fought through a rugged schedule and finished with a very respectable 5-2 record. Only losses were to Seccina and Crispus Attucks by identical narrow margins of 56-52. Four of the five victories were by thirty points or more while the squad defeated Washington 59-50. Graduation left some gaps in the varsity which these boys should capably fill next year.

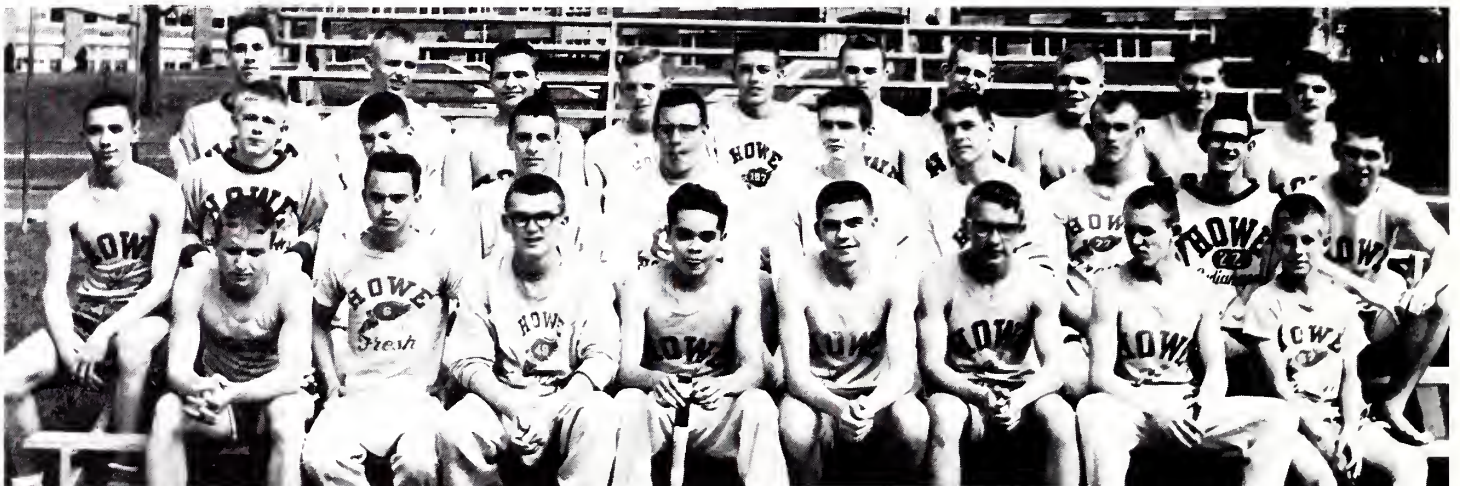

In keeping with the winning tradition of the Howe track teams, the frosh completed the season with a sparkling 7-1 record in dual meets. A second place finish in the City Meet and a fourth place in the Wood Relays proved that the team could also excel in the large meets. The Carl Spiess Award for outstanding sportsmanship among the first-year spike-sters was presented to Bud Bayne.

Rough going for inexperienced golfers

Three returning lettermen, Jim Birk, Dave Smartz, and Ted Kolsky, provided the nucleus for the 1961 varsity golf squad. Characterized by inexperience and lack of reserves, the linksmen compiled a record of only four wins, five losses, and one tie. Par shooters for the team were Jim Birk and Dave Smartz. Both boys were seniors with four years of previous experience. Birk and Smartz led the golf team to wins over Shortridge, Sacred Heart, Manual, and Warren Central. The tie meet was with east-side foe, Scecina. Recipient of the Most Valuable Player Award in 1960, Jim Birk placed high in many meets in 1961 and received the award for the second year in a row.

The linksmen practice daily at Pleasant Run Golf Course to better their golf games and to bring them "down" to par. Coached by Mr. Fred Lemley, the golfers never gave up their determination, even when the chips were down.

The golf team is the least publicized of the athletics at Howe. For the 1962 season, the Hornets will have five returning lettermen. The future looks bright, and the golfers deserve student backing.

Attentively Jim Birk watches Dave Smartz take a practice swing while tuning up for a golf meet. Both boys were senior letter winners and formed the nucleus for the 1961 squad.

Coach Wood, gridmen praise student body

The 1961 varsity football season was a rough one for the players, the coach, and the student body. A new coach, Mr. B. C. Wood, formerly assistant football coach at Anderson College, had eight lettermen with which to make a football team. Mr. Wood's greatest obstacle was the big lack of size, as he had only two boys weighing over 200 pounds.

The Hornets compiled a season record of one win, eight losses, and one tie with the lone win coming over past nemesis Washington, and the tie game being played with Anderson's Madison Heights. Despite a losing season, the gridmen displayed a great will to win and practiced hard to improve their record. Strong student support was prevalent all through the season and was greatly appreciated by the team. At the awards assembly, the squad gave the students a standing ovation in appreciation.

With eight returning lettermen, the prospect for the 1961 varsity football season was good. But defeat met the Hornets at the start. In the first game, with Tech, Howe was smashed by a score of 38-0. Four times during the season, the gridmen were held scoreless, and also four times they were held to only six points.

The one-win, eight-loss, one-tie season was not completely glum. Bright spots came in the Noblesville, Madison Heights, and Washington games. Against Noblesville, down 27-0, the Hornets staged a fourth quarter in which they scored three touchdowns to pull the final score up to 27-20. At Anderson, Wood's men battled Madison Heights to a 6-6 tie with halfback Tom Tiedemann scoring the Howe TD. A 38-27 victory was registered over Washington, a big problem in the past.

Recipient of the Most Voluable Ployer Award was junior fullback Dick Woodbury. Dick was the leod- ing ground goiner ond general workhorse of the team. The Best Mentol Attitude Award went to senior Bob Espich. Tri-coptions were selected by the team. They were seniors John Leone, Bob Espich, and Steve Hooper. Other standouts on the team were halfbocks Tom Tiedemonn ond Charlie Bechtel ond linemen Lorry Johnson and Poul Pusey.

First year reserve football cooch, Mr. Kenneth Long, on olumnus of Brood Ripple High School, led his reserve team to o two-win, five-loss record. The Brown ond Gold reserves choked up wins over Seccina ond Warren Central.

Cooching the freshmon team was 1960 reserve cooch, Mr. Horrison Richardson. The frosh hod o rugged season defeating only Seccino. The Hornets posted o season record of one win and five losses.

Noblesville tacklers converge around Dick Woodbury (16) as he digs for a first down in the homecoming game. Dick was the Hornet's leading ground gainer and most valuable player.

During the season, many boys on the reserve football team dressed for varsity games. Members of the reserve team were Stan Bradley, Kipp Clark, Steve Day, Gary Deeter, Elliott

Senior runners lead as harriers gain

Six senior harriers composed the nucleus of Howe's 1961 varsity cross-country team. Led by Bill Harold and Larry Sachs, the team dropped only one dual and one tri-way meet against some of the state's toughest competition. These losses came from state champ Ben Davis and city champ Manual by one point. The Hornets opened the season with a hard-fought victory over Washington and a romp over Lawrence. Following the second place behind Ben Davis and ahead of North Central in the tri-way meet, the distance men rolled off three straight wins before the loss to Manual in the season finale.

This year was the twenty-first running of the annual Howe Invitational, and in it the home team took a respectable fifth out of fifteen teams. With John Wiggins sparking the improved team effort, the Hornets placed well in the Shortridge Invitational and City and Sectional meets. Bill Harold received the Most Valuable Player award for the second year in a row, and Sachs was elected Captain.

A promising reserve team posted a record of 5 and 1 with a third place in the City. The frosh had a 1 and 2 record, finishing fourth in the City.

Senior forward Steve Hooper makes a stab at a rebound through the hands of his Shelbyville opponent as teammates Denny Barrett (12) and Dave Nichoalds (44) look on.

Experience is key

Experience is a vital factor in a basketball team, and in the 1961-62 varsity basketball season, Coach James Stutz had no lack of it. With seven lettermen returning from last year's three-win-seventeen-loss team, Mr. Stutz built a team which racked up the most successful Hornet basketball record in five long years. The 11-11 record equals the record posted by the 1957 Howe five.

The Hornets were led by junior forward Jim Rubush who maintained a 14-point average over the season, Dave Nichoalds, 6'6" senior center, and senior forward Steve Hooper. Rounding out the first six players were junior Jay Wise, Denny Barrett, and Dan Breckenridge. The Hornets possessed size, speed, rebounding strength, and accurate shooting eyes. Above all the netmen had a strong desire to win.

The varsity netters had a strong attraction for their home floor in the 1961-62 season. Losing their first two home games, the Hornets came back to win their next seven straight home games. Home losses were to Washington and North Central.

Next year's outlook is bright as there will be seven returning lettermen from this year's squad.

Center Dave Nichoalds reaches high to guard the hook shot of a Greenfield opponent. A strong rebounder, Nichoalds was the tallest Howe player in the past five years.

Howe's varsity basketball team played one of the toughest schedules in the state. A .500 record is an accomplishment with such a schedule. The Hornets played four teams which were eventual sectional winners and the teams which were city and county champs.

Starting the season with a loss, the Hornets won their second game in two overtimes. Then the Brown and Gold upset highly touted Broad Ripple by 11 points. A second upset came about when they dropped Columbus, rated in the state's top 20 teams at that time.

In the city tournament, Howe defeated Arlington, but dropped its second contest to Crispus Attucks in a hard-fought game.

At the Southport Sectional Tourney, the netmen handled Mount Comfort with ease for a 47-point win. However, the Hornets lost their second game by a 22-point margin to Franklin Central's Flashes.

FRONT ROW — Anderson, Conway, Stewart, Lovelace, Pearson, Snider. Coached by Mr. Roger Schroder, the freshman basketball team compiled a record of seven wins and ten losses. Each Fall around 150 boys tryout for frosh basketball but only 25 boys can be kept for the team. There are two teams — the first, or "A," team consisting of 15 boys and the second, or "B," team which has 10 players. At any time during the season, boys may go up to the "A" team or down to the "B" team as the case may be.

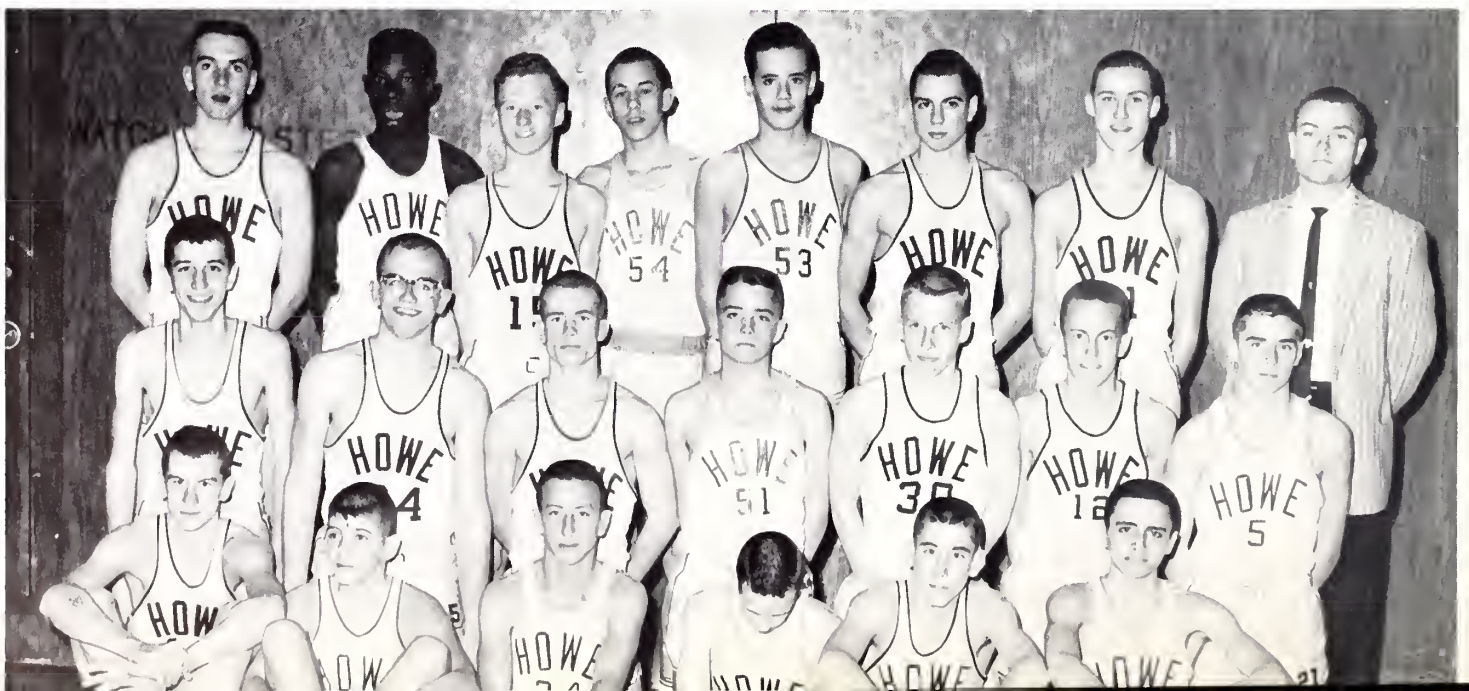

Several awards were given to basketball players. Among those were the Most Valuable Player Award, which went to Jim Rubush, and the Best Mental Attitude Award, won by Dan Breckenridge. Steve Hooper was named varsity team captain. Tom Ott and Chuck Mundy received awards for the best free-throw shooting percentages on the frosh and reserve teams.

Mr. Steve Vencel's reserve team compiled a record of 15 wins and 7 losses in the 1961-62 season. The Hornets also came in second in the city tournament, defeating Arlington, Attucks, and Wood, but losing to champion Tech, 64-45. The reserves defeated Arlington and Attucks twice but lost twice to Tech.

The freshman basketball team, coached by Mr. Roger Schroder, acquired a record of 7 wins and 10 losses. The Hornets lost twice to Attucks but defeated Southport, Tech, and Arlington.

Cheerleaders enliven sports events by

Whenever Howeites attend Howe football and basketball games, they see a group of six girls dedicated to the job of building school spirit and putting spark into spectators at these events. These six girls are the cheerleaders who brave cold, damp weather and the thought of possible defeat to provide the enthusiasm which drives our team to victory. Under the direction of Miss Janice Brown, the cheerleaders spend many evenings after school practicing numerous yells, songs, and routines. They work hard until every move they make is in unison.

Each year tryouts are held for cheerleaders, and each girl has to prepare and present her own routine as a test of her creativity and leadership.

In addition to leading cheers at the games, the cheerleaders organize and lead the cheerblock, plan and direct all pep assemblies, and make posters and give speeches to boost school spirit.

Returning from last year's cheer squad is Pam Butler. Others are Louellen Park, Donna Prell, Mary B. Robertson, Marcia Townsend, and Carol Weaver.

As the basketball game hectically continues, varsity cheerleader Marcia Townsend calmly watches from the sideline. The cheerleaders work hard to put spirit into athletic events.

Leading cheers at reserve football and basketball games was the job of reserve cheerleaders Pat Harrell, Diane Crossland, Judy Mishler, and Jodi Dobbs. Mary Jordan is not pictured.

building enthusiasm and school spirit

A love of athletics, a loud voice and strong lungs, and femininity are the only requirements for membership in the Howe girls' cheerblock. Girls from all four classes, dressed in capes and gloves made by the P.T.A., back their team on to victory. The athletic teams supported by the block appreciate the strong backing, especially when they are losing.

Yelling their hearts out at all varsity football and basketball games, varsity cheerleaders Carol Weaver, Donna Prell, Mary B. Robertson, Marcia Townsend, Louellen Park, and Pam Butler put spirit into the fans to push their team onto victory. The girls work hard to support our teams whether winning or losing and practice hard after school during the year.

Determined grapplers show improvement

Practice, diet, sleep is the continual work-out for many members of the wrestling team. Some boys spend as much as three hours a day practicing in order to stay in condition. Although the team was lacking in experience, the grapplers compensated with determination. As the points began to add in their favor, the Hornets defeated Arlington and Tech near the end of the season.

Steve Guidone was the Most Valuable Player on the varsity squad. He was the city champion and placed third in the state. On his overall season record, Steve won 24 matches while losing only two. Dan Diersing had a fine season average winning 13 of 20 pairings and placing third in the city.

In the reserve city meet Stan Bradley copped a first place. The freshman team also had its city champions as Bill Dobson and Bill Greaver placed first in their weight classes. The freshman team finished with a 2 and 8 season record while 3 and 11 was the reserve slate. Many of these boys will be needed to fill the ranks of varsity next year.

The outstanding member of the wrestling squad was Steve Guidone. Steve placed third in the state meet, losing only to the eventual champion by one point in the semi-finals.

Dean Fields and Steve Guidone grapple for leverage in one of their many afternoon practice sessions. Exercises and weight lifting are as necessary as the actual mat workouts.

Trainer Mr. Rehm demonstrates to athletic managers Bob Bruner, Dan Murphy, Carlos Depositor and Jerry Carter the technique of operating equipment for treating injuries.

Miles of tape and pounds of vaseline are used each year to keep the players going full speed. Taping ankles and legs is one of Mr. Rehm's specialties which he demonstrates.

Managers work unseen to support teams

Behind every winning team there's a good coach, a good trainer, and good athletic managers. How is very fortunate in all of these categories. Several students volunteer for manager positions; and if they are chosen, a great amount of work lies ahead.

Distributing uniforms, keeping equipment in good order, and caring for slight injuries are all part of the managers' work. Each day they are asked if they will tape up an ankle or open the towel room. Mr. Justin Rehm is the trainer, and he assigns various duties to the boys. They must not only attend all of the games but also each of the practices and scrimmages. The managers devote as much or more time to the team as do the players.

The squad of athletic managers included Bob Bruner, varsity manager and in charge of the equipment room; Dan Murphy, reserve manager; and Mike Nation, recorder of statistics. Jerry Carter worked in the training room, and Ric Bartlett was the freshman basketball manager. Carlos Depositor and Dennis Durham helped with the wrestling teams.

Bob Rumbaugh and Tom Tiedemann receive their running equipment from Bob Bruner while others wait their turn. Handling equipment is one of the managers' most important duties.

Intramurals provide activities for all

In this jump-ball situation the "skin" team seems about to control the tip against the efforts of the "shirts." Play is always spirited and aggressive in intramural games.

Intramurals offer the opportunity for many boys to participate in inter-school sports when they might not otherwise have the chance due to lack of ability or time. Contests are supervised by faculty sponsors, but the boys manage many of their own details. A junior-senior league and a freshman-sophomore league were set up to provide more equal competition between classes.

Cross-country at the intramural level is in its second year at Howe. Many boys take part in order to get in condition for coming winter sports. At the end of the season, the runners are awarded medals based on their performances in the scheduled meets and the number of practices attended.

The most popular intramural sport is basketball. Over two hundred energetic players participated this year. The junior-senior league play was highlighted by the addition of a faculty team which was preparing for its annual battle with the seniors. The season is ended by an elimination tournament, and the victorious teams gain the league championships.

Eight players scramble for positions under the backboard as they prepare to battle for the rebound if the shot fails. Many exciting moments pack the games until the end.

Members of Letterman's Club and G.A.A.

Barbara Rhodes demonstrates one of the many different stunts that the girls perform on the horse. G.A.A. gives its members an opportunity to try many activities and new athletic stunts.

The Girls' Athletic Association is one of the oldest clubs still active at Howe. The club is open to any girl who is interested in enjoying a wide variety of activities. The aim of the organization is to encourage good sportsmanship and to promote companionship among the girls.

Members of the G.A.A. participate in volleyball, bowling, archery, and swimming under the direction of Miss Johanne Guenter. In December the girls join with the Lettermen's Club to sponsor the Winter Wonderland Dance. The members take care of decorations and arrangements for the dance band.

"Keep your eye on that basket" thinks Sue Stafford as she lets the basketball fly for two points. Many girls have become very adept in basketball — a sport not for the boys only.

The 1961 Winter Wonderland Dance is enjoyed by many Howeites, both "stag and drag." This annual dance completes the school activities before the Christmas vacation.

gain entertainment, provide services

Winter Wonderland King candidates are Jim Madrill, Jim Binney, Dick Corley, Bob Espich, Joe Nelson, Dick Woodbury, Ward Poulous, and Brent Anderson. Joe Nelson was king.

Lettermen's Club is designed for boys interested in all fields of athletics. In order to be eligible for membership, one must have received a varsity letter; and participation in the club activities retains this membership. Basketball, swimming, and bowling are the most popular group sports in which the members engage.

Under the direction of sponsor Mr. Sam Kelley and President Jay Bishop, the Lettermen's Club is fast becoming Howe's outstanding service club. Members aid the school by parking cars at athletic events and by ushering at basketball games and many other school functions.

The Lettermen's Club and G.A.A. are co-sponsors of the Winter Wonderland Dance. This dance has become the highlight of the school's Christmas season. The boys' part in the dance affairs consist of publicity, ticket sales, and after-dance clean-up.

Educational responsibilities to each

What keeps Howe buzzing? Of course the answer is the faculty! Mr. Thomas Stirling and his able staff work in many areas to improve themselves for their jobs, and to improve the school.

Teachers, as well as pupils, give their free time to Howe clubs and productions for each school activity is sponsored by a faculty member.

Besides instructing and assisting the student body of Howe, the teachers spend many hours in workshops and special classes learning how to better perform their teaching duties. Many teachers spend their vacations working on advanced degrees.

Unusual hobbies fill the informal lives of Howe's staff. Mr. Briggs is a department store Santa Claus. Mr. Beck is an accomplished pianist. "Pop" Watkins and Mr. Fleck help their churches by directing choirs. Mr. Carr "spelunks" during his vacations, and Mr. Stirling uses his artistic talents to paint in water color. Mr. Pike and Mr. Long indulge themselves in long games of chess. Mr. Ruschhaupt raises dogs and horses. Mr. Tobin won second place in the "Best Built Man in Indiana" Contest. He lifts weights as a hobby. Mrs. DeWaard collects shells and has a large, unusual collection. She also has decorated the interior of her home by hand painting her walls with designs. Mr. Carlson enters recipe contests and wins!

Mr. Kenneth Pike, the school's second English teacher on the exchange program, spends much of his free time talking with Mr. Stirling and other teachers about his trip to America.

Can a small-town college girl find happiness among the scrambling subways, booming business, persistent playboys, and soaring skyscrapers of New York City? This year's senior play, "Ask Any Girl," provided a fun-filled account of young Meg Wheeler's sojourn in the big city. Feeling restrained in the search for a suitable marriage partner in her hometown, Meg ventures to New York with her parents and two elderly aunts, who approve the Madison Avenue Girls' Hotel as Meg's residence.

While taking part in a survey, Miss Wheeler meets sophisticated Miles Doughton. Meg's attention soon is lavished on Miles' brother Evan, whom she decides is the "perfect mate." Her conniving tricks to win Evan lend to the mirth of the play.

Woven into the plot of the leading couple's romance is another love affair, that of Meg's roommate Jeannie and her suitor Alvin. Other hotel inhabitants and employees of Doughton & Doughton combined to present an outstanding performance.

Meg's confidence in Evan's love causes her to become greatly alarmed when Evan enters the lobby of Madison Avenue Girls' Hotel with flirtatious Lisa snuggling at his side.

A slightly-too-plump Jeannie tries nonchalantly to avoid the wooing of Alvin, a shipping clerk turned executive. The tables turn when Jeannie accepts his marriage proposal.

a tale of a small-town gal, gone metropolitan

No matter where girls gather, gossip is almost sure to circulate. As Jeannie looks through her mail and Ada tends to the switchboard, Heidi, Ruby, and Lisa discuss the latest.

Miles Doughton, the manager of the research bureau, lights Meg's cigarette when she offers her opinion in a survey of four new flavors: anise, peppermint, rose, and spearmint.

We have certainly had a successful year,

At the annual vespers service on Sunday, June 10, Howe seniors, parents, and patrons of the community heard the choir sing the traditional "The Lord Bless You and Keep You."

Since receiving senior rings on February 10 of last year, we, the 1962 seniors of Howe High School, have gradually advanced to a respected position among all Howeites. As freshmen, we calmly accepted hisses in assembly and bashfully picked up our books when teasing upperclassmen knocked them from our hands. In time we gained stature, and proudly we "booed" at other freshmen when they dropped their trays in lunch. We were still inferior though, as our butterfly nets signified. The arrival of the Junior Prom and class rings paved the way for our last and greatest year.

There were the usual things — mock election, homeroom in the cafeteria, front row seats in assembly, class officers, colors, parties, and, as always, the commencement and senior prom. But somehow each of these prestige symbols meant more to us; this year the honors were ours. Together we cheered our athletic teams, rehearsed for the Pleasant Run Revue, laughed at "Jose Jimenez," studied our Indiana government, sang along with Mitch, danced the "Twist," and wepted at our last sectionals. It was a year of mixed emotions, and one never to be forgotten.

From babies to hillbillies, from a doctor to a calypso dancer complete with bongoes, all types of senior basketball players showed up for the annual contest with the faculty "fatmen," only to see the senior team go down in defeat. Besides the rousing entertainment of the game, the girls' and boys' drill teams and the cheerleaders provided some laughs.

As they get ready for the prom, seniors realize that in a few hours their high school days will all be over. With the strains of "Pomp and Circumstance" still in his mind, each senior will soon dance to the music at the Indiana Roof, then dine at the Heritage, the Chuck Wagon, or the Italian Village. Proudly Jim Girton presents his date, Pat Mulry with an orchid corsage, the dream of every girl.

. . . and the 1962 HILLTOPPER staff meets the final deadline and hands over the tools of the trade to next year's staff. The preceding summer we spent learning about yearbook layout and copywriting in summer institutes. In school we spent many days taking pictures, recording names, counting money, drawing layouts and writing for our book.

The HILLTOPPER became a larger book this year and used the offset printing process for the first time. The staff is indebted to Mr. Bob Cavanagh of American Yearbook Company, Mr. Jack Bundy of S. K. Smith Cover Company, and to Earl and Mike Loudermilk of Loudermilk's Studios for photography.

Cheers at the games, prettiest dresses at the dance, jeans and sweat shirts at scenery painting sessions, and the everyday faces of Howeites hard at work in classes went into this yearbook. Distribution of the HILLTOPPER, closely followed by graduation signal the end of this school year.

The HILLTOPPER has recorded the events of this year in the hope that you, the reader, will remember — THIS IS THOMAS CARR HOWE HIGH SCHOOL — 1962.
